

Adams finished, and a homer behind a pass spelled defeat.

There might have been a different story to that first game if Heinie Zimmerman had been supplied with a stabilizer in the opening inning. He was on second base, Schulte was on third and two were out. Vic Saier, a reliable hitter, the best pincher of the club, was at bat.

Zim, however, didn't seem to place much faith in Vic and tried another of his bright plays. He led off second and drew a throw from the catcher. Schulte hadn't been tipped to this bit of brainstorm and stayed on third. Zim was chased up the line, ran Schulte off the bag and the latter was killed at the plate.

With Wilbur Good in a batting slump it would cause no surprise if Schulte is switched to right and Jack Murray goes to left. At first there was talk of replacing Cy Williams with the red-headed gardener, but Cy is pummeling the pill better than Wilbur, and even at a hotter clip than Schulte.

Murray has a mess of good baseball left in his system. He can hit and has proved it in the three times he has been used as pinch hitter on this trip.

A split let the hPillies climb another half game above the Cubs, but they are still within one da's reach, and possession of the top rung will be decided for the time being when the West Siders roll into Sleepyville. In the meantime, Brooklyn is pressing close, being but a game and a half behind the Cubs.

Home runs figured in six counts of Phil-Card game. Snyder, Cravath and Bancroft each baged four-spots. Demaree pitched well.

Jack Coombs came back after being out with a strained tendon and help Reds. Toney pitched good ball, but was unlucky. Groh hit two doubles.

Caldwell, Yank star, was soft for Tigers. Crawford whaled three hits. Boland was a puzzle.

Henry made three hits, last one winning for Washington. Gallia and Ayres held Browns. Slater pasted a double and single.

Cleveland hit Wood hard to win the opener. Then Ray Collins pitched his best game of year, giving two hits, and Red Sox got a split. Lewis, Speaker and Gainer got three hits each in second. Hooper hit homer and four singles for day.

Kay See errors let Pittsburgh score five in eighth. Gilmore's two triples and dsingle were useless.

Anderson and Schulz help Newark to three hits per game and Buffalo took two.

Rankin Johnson lost his first game in Baltimore uniform, Brooklyn hitting him hard. Cooper, Halt and Smith hit his three times each. Seaton outpitched Suggs, but lost second battle.

Russell Ford has been unconditionally released by Buffeds. He couldn't win without emery ball.

HIS JUDGMENT

Hubby—Hilda, I fear the young man to whom I gave a job in the store last week is crooked.

Wifey—You should not judge by appearances.

Hubby—I am judging by disappearances in this case!
